OLD MASTERS

Because I had loved so deeply,
Because I had loved so long,
God in His great compassion
Gave me the gift of song.

Because I have loved so vainly,
And sung with such faltering
The Master, in infinite mercy,
Offers the boon of death.

—Paul Lawrence Dunbar: "Compensation."

St. James Aid Meeting Wednesday

The St. James Ladies Aid Society met on Wednesday in an all day meeting with Mrs. Anna Carr. A large number of members and guests were present. Three new members joined the society. At the noon hour a delicious picnic dinner was enjoyed. The hostess serving chicken and noodles.

The meeting was opened by our new president, Mrs. Nada Burkett. Song, scripture prayer and roll call, then Mrs. Long, president pro tem of the Lee Co. Home Bureau was introduced to us and gave us a very good talk on Home Bureau work. I am sure there are many benefits to be derived from this work and will try and help in any way we can. We wish Mrs. Long much success in her work. The treasurer's report and the minutes of the last meeting were then heard. Our new president asked us to answer roll call with a Bible verse at the next meeting. Several items of business were then discussed.

The social committee have decided to have something doing each month, so on March 10 they have planned a supper. Sauer kraut and backbone being the main items on the menu. A short program was then enjoyed. Mrs. Bahen sang a song which was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Edith Both gave a reading and then Mrs. Bahen gave us a very good musical number. The names drawn to furnish the program for next month were Anna Lahman, Amy Wolford, Alice Bahen. The meeting was closed by all repeating the Lord's Prayer and all departed voting Mrs. Carr a kind hostess. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Frank Cramer with Mrs. Bessie Brendt assisting in April.

Twenty-five friends of Mrs. Margaret Poirer went to her home Friday afternoon and gave her a complete surprise as she thought no one knew of the birthday being on that date.

The afternoon was ideal and each lady had her own fancy work on which to sew.

A delicious luncheon was served. Mrs. Emma Kennedy had baked a large angel food cake for the hostess' birthday which was presented to her. Many lovely gifts were presented. Mrs. Potter with the best wishes of her friends, Mrs. Margaret Morrow of Cheyenne, Wyo., Mrs. Potter's aunt, was an out-of-town guest.

DINNER—Casserole of smoked salmon, twice baked potatoes, endive salad, rye bread, canned Bartlett pears, fudge cake, milk, coffee.

Sadie's Pudding.
Three and one-half cups hot milk, 2 tablespoons granulated gelatin, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup butter, 1 slice candied pineapple, 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Soften gelatin in 1/2 cup milk and scald remaining milk in top of double boiler. When milk reaches boiling point, stir in softened gelatin and add yolks of eggs well beaten with sugar and salt. Cook over hot water until mixture begins to thicken. Add chestnuts which have been boiled, peeled and chopped, and pineapple finely chopped. Cook a minute longer, stirring vigorously. Remove from fire and fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Turn into a mold and chill. Serve with whipped cream.

Service Sunday

Netted $185.71

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the local Methodist church had charge of the services yesterday, with results which should be gratifying to them. They called it "Thank Offering Day" and would think that was somewhat of a risk, for they wanted to face the second contribution box in the space of an hour? But the program was worth it. It was as interesting as any lecture or other "pay" entertainment that the church has had in a year.

Miss Callie B. Morgan, head of the local society, presided. Mrs. A. W. Carlson, representing the parsonage (Bro. Carlson having made an exchange of pulpits for the day), read the Scripture lesson. His Rev. Samuel Taylor, pastor of First M. E. Church, Sterling, gave the address.

Mr. Taylor, for five years represented the Methodist Episcopal church in an appointment in Lucknow, India, where he was pastor to the teaching corps of Isabella Thoburn College. He gave a most vivid and compelling picture of the life of women in India and said that only women could minister to the needs of those unfortunate women.

In opening, Miss Morgan had told that last year the membership of this organization was more than one-half million and the receipts were over two million dollars. Also that 94 cents of every dollar raised goes to the foreign field, as officers work without compensation. Since a day in March 1869, when the wives of two foreign missionaries organized the society, at a meeting in Boston, it has raised a total of thirty-seven and one-half million dollars.

When the women collectors started around, following the address, the congregation were given to know that $150.00 was expected of them. When they came back, 10, they brought in pledges and cash to a total of $185.71. It was truly a "Thank Offering" service.

TRUE BLUE CLASS AND UPSTREAMERS CLASS TO MEET

The Upstreamers class and the True Blue class of the Sunday school of the Christian church, taught by Mrs. Wells and Mrs. Reagan, respectively, will hold a joint meeting at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the church. All members and friends of the church are cordially invited to be present.

W. C. O. F. TO MEET THURSDAY EVENING

The W. C. O. F. will meet Thursday evening in the Knights of Columbus club home. An election of officers is to be held and a large attendance is desired.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

The world's oldest man and the world's oldest woman will be married this spring. He is Ivan Chatskowsky, aged 145, and she is Olga Marlow, aged 121. They live near Berlin. A traveler's report has it, met the world's oldest man and suggested that the two correspond. They did. Wedding bells will ring. I may be skeptical, but I wonder if "the traveler" wasn't a show man, and if the newly married twain may not find themselves on exhibit in a side show.

ON MARRIAGE

Speaking of marriage, there is a new book called "Tin Wedding" by Margaret Leech, that those married, those about to marry, and those who may marry, must not fail to read. Perhaps I should limit its field of necessity to the younger married tribe. It will probably sail over the heads of the 40's and 50's and 60's.

It is one of the most beautifully written books of the year. It has the savor of Morley's "Thunder on the Left." It does not tell. It suggests. It has lines like this—

"She found it unpleasant to imagine Aunt Geraldine finding rest beneath the azure canopy of the slender four-poster bed, lying between the fine linen sheets like an old coffee stain."

"The night closed around like a moist black bandage."

The story is simple enough. Lucia and Jay Fanning have been married ten years and have a son Nickie, aged 7. They have money, position, good breeding, and a gay social life in the smart set. They are very modern, "broad-minded." They have their respective men and women friends and make dates with people other than one another.

On their tenth wedding anniversary, Lucia discovers that her state is not so perfect, so secure as she had imagined. She learns that Jay loves another woman. And the way in which she learns it throughout the hours of the wedding anniversary—is the artistry of the book. No "scenes." No big things. But the very gentleness of the marching drama makes it crash like thunder.

And when she really does know, reserved, unemotional Lucia Fanning is primitive. She runs away. She will leave him. How dare he think he can have them both? But before she goes to sleep that night she is the restored, sane, calm "modern wife." After all, reasons she, what has she less than before she knew? "Fantastic! she thought of the dusk as slashed into gray ribbons by her passion."

"After all, he was her husband! she possessed the habit of him, the prerogative of his name, the occupancy of his house. They were bound by association, convenience, affection, appearances, shared possessions. At night he would come home to her. She would administer his household, rear his child."

"She and Jay would live out their lives together. Every one would be able to see that they got on very well. They would have little jokes, amusing friends, courtesy, loyalty, security; they would never nag and bicker."

But as Lucia Fanning, no longer primitive, prepared for bed, she dropped a bottle of face lotion on the tiled bathroom floor.

"Staring at the scattered fragments of the glass, she would be able to see that they got on very well. They would have little jokes, amusing friends, courtesy, loyalty, security; they would never nag and bicker."

Lucia stood painfully gazing at the bathroom floor. Still tears ran down her pale cheeks, as though helplessly she grieved for the loss of some secret perfume which she had cherished.

THE VALUE OF PROPER PERSPECTIVE.

A young man who is studying painting and drawing gets many injunctions from his teachers as to the value of perspective.

No work of art can be of any value if the artist does not have the proper perspective—if he does not see things in their proper proportions and relations.

We should like to suggest that perspective is just as important to the average "man in the street" as it is to the artist.

The world just now is full of pessimism. The war has left many of us in a spiritual and mental slough. Many people see the disordered welter of foreign and domestic political and national affairs and conclude that the great sacrifice of the war was in vain—that the world is even worse off now than it was before 1914.

There is where the value of perspective lies.

If you would escape from pessimism, learn to look at things in their proper proportion. Remember that you are too near to current events now to gauge them correctly. The true fruits of the sacrifice of the war are not yet apparent; but they are ripening, slowly and surely.

Consider for a minute; during the decade after the Civil war, it must have seemed to a sensitive observer as if the results were hardly worth the terrible cost. The South was enduring agonies in the reconstruction period; the government was honeycombed with graft and intrigue; politics was bitter, sordid and mercenary; the dawning reign of industrialism was bringing brutality and misery to the lives of thousands.

Surely one might have been justified then in sinking into pessimism. But today, viewing those days with the proper perspective, we can see what people then could not see; that the sacrifices were not in vain, that something much finer and better than the old order was born in the blood and fury of the Civil War.

It is the same today. We may not be able to see "better times" ahead; but the eye of history, half a century hence, will see clearly how the world took one more step forward beginning with 1914.

Try to see the events of today in the right perspective. You will escape despondency and doubt.

WE CAN'T EAT AS OUR ANCESTORS DID.

In London recently a man died from trying to eat a dinner too big for his capacity. This set certain people to comparing modern menus with the meals eaten by our ancestors a few hundred years ago.

We have hardly half the eating-capacity our ancestors had, they report.

True enough. Appie pie, in the old days, were real pies, nearly big enough to fill a dishpan. An Englishman didn't consider his dinner official unless it had included five or six kinds of meat and a couple quarts of very filling beer. Read Rebelais for an idea of the staggering lists of sausages, tripe, pot pies, roasts, fricasees and so on that graced every table. Then think of our modern business men's lunch—a baked potato, glass of milk and small piece of pie.

Verily, a glory has departed from the world. People knew how to eat, in those days.

POOR STUDENTS; WHOSE FAULT?

A high school principal in a middle western city the other day in giving diplomas to the mid-winter graduating class, gave the assembled crowd a jolt when he criticized the class sharply for having paid too little attention to their lessons.

"You just got by," he told them. He added that if they had paid less attention to football, parties and the like they might have made better marks.

True enough. Just what the situation was in that particular high school we don't know; but usually, when a high school is devoting too much attention to athletics it will be found that the principal, by insisting on good football teams and accepting mediocre work in the class rooms, is largely responsible.

MUSSOLINI, PATRON OF ARTS.

In a comfortable studio in Naples a white-bearded old man is working once more as a sculptor, after 25 years of mental darkness.

The sculptor is Vincenzo Gemito, hailed in the closing years of the 19th century as Italy's greatest sculptor. His mind weakened, however a quarter of a century ago, and he was unheard of for many years. A devoted woman finally has nursed him back to mental health—and now the Italian government has rescued him from poverty by appropriating 100,000 lire to enable him to continue his work.

Here is an interesting new sidelight on the character of Benito Mussolini, Italy's dictator, who was responsible for the appropriation.

It is sort of thing that makes history look with indulgence on what some people are wont to call political oppression.

The Tines like the Crooked Man, who said, "I'll do whatever I can to show you folks a dandy time. Just follow where I go." He walked along a crooked line, and smartly swung his crooked cane. Said Scouty, "He's a dandy sort, and funny as a show."

They hadn't walked so very far until the man said, "Here we are. This is the house I live in and you're welcome as can be. Just run inside and have some fun." And so, they all did, one by one. The house was also crooked, as they all could plainly see.

The windows and the doors were queer, but sunlight brought the place some cheer. The Tines started walking 'round, exploring as they went. Why, even chairs twisted 'round, and so was everything they found. Said Scouty, "For this sort of thing I wouldn't give a cent."

"Oh, is that so," someone replied.

"Well, you were glad to come inside, and, don't you know it's not polite to criticize things you see. The man was very kind to us. I think you're mean to make a fuss. Why don't you just enjoy it and have lots of fun like me?"

"All right, I'm sorry," Clowny said. "You lead the way." So Copy led. And soon the bunch of Tynmites were climbing here and there. They went through windows, near at hand, out on a roof where they could stand. The Crooked Man was watching, but he didn't seem to care.

"Be careful, now. Don't fall," he said. "Or you might land upon your head. I would like to have you hurt. Go easy, if you can." And so the Tines all behaved, and 'bout the crooked home they raved. And after while, they all agreed, he was a dandy man.

SAINT and SINNER

When Bob Hathaway came later that afternoon, his arms filled with paper bags of delicatessen foods and fruits, and a tissue-wrapped cluster of purple and gold pansies for Joy, Faith met him at the door with a great brown eyes.

"I'm terribly frightened about Joy," she whispered. "I think she's asleep now, but be very quiet, darling. Her temperature is over a hundred and three, and she cries. If I leave the room for a minute."

"I'll fix supper myself," Bob told her, after he had stooped to kiss her over the bundles.

As Faith left the room, she raised her brows significantly to Bob, who followed her into the hall.

"Did you find old Phil?" she asked, in a careful whisper, her eyes fully on the closed door of the room where Joy lay sick.

Bob shook his head. "I went to the address he'd given on his peddler's license and the old couple there—named Peterson—had never heard of him, or so they said. Claim they've been living at that address for five years. And since it's only a two-room shack it's pretty certain old Phil doesn't live there as a boarder. But I've not given up hope yet."

"Listen!" Faith commanded him in a startled whisper.

Faintly at first, then in a crescendo of fear, came Joy's shrill, childish voice, pleading: "Don't let them kill Cherry, God! Don't let them hang her or electrocute her, Jesus! You men take your spite out on me, God! Please, God! I'll die, so's you won't be mad at us no more! O-oh!"

"What in the world is she doing?" Faith cried, as she ran to the closed door beyond which a child was trying to make a bargain with a wrathful and jealous God.

Bob followed her into the room, dropping his bundles to the floor as he ran. Joy, in her faded pink cotton flannel night gown, was kneeling on the floor beside her bed, her little bare feet starting white against the dark painted floor, her small hands clasped and raised heavenward, tears slipping from her closed eyes down thin cheeks painted poppy-red with fever.

"Oh, darling!" Faith moaned, as she stooped to gather the body of the delirious child in her arms. "Didn't Faith tell you not to get out of bed? You're sick, honey! You'll make yourself worse. There, now! Faith's here, precious. She won't leave you again. I'll lie down beside you and hold you tight in my arms."

But Joy writhed out of the clasp of those comforting arms, staring up at Bob with horror-haunted, pale gray eyes. "I want to die," she gasped, her breath coming rapidly from her congested lungs. "God's mad at us. Cora Parsons said so. He's mad and He's going to let 'em kill Cherry to get even with us. I been praying all night for Him to let Cherry out of jail. And it was cold on the bare floor!" She began to sob then, relaxing in Faith's arms.

"That's why she's so much worse," Faith groaned. "And the doctor told me to watch her so carefully. Oh, Bob! I'm no good for anything! I can't save Cherry or keep Joy from making herself sick—oh, Bob!"

"You're becoming hysterical yourself, dear," Bob warned her, as he knelt beside the bed. "You couldn't possibly stay awake all night to watch her. And no one would have dreamed that she'd take it like this. Listen, Joy, honey," he coaxed, taking one of her hot little hands and holding it against his cool cheek.

"Cherry's not going to be killed. God isn't mad at the Leas family at all. You believe Bob, don't you? God is helping Bob to save Cherry? He's showing Bob and Faith the way, but we'll have to be patient just a little longer."

"Tomorrow," Joy gets into front page headlines and Faith visits Cherry in jail. (Copyright, 1927, NEA Service, Inc.)

Sidelights on Law-Making Bodies of Illinois

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—(AP)—A call has gone out to the members of the Illinois Manufacturers Association notifying those interested in the women's eight hour bill that on March 8, arguments against the bill will be presented to a joint meeting of the house and senate committees on industrial affairs.

Representatives of a number of industries which employ women were present at the meeting March 1 when arguments were made by the proponents of the bill.

A delegation of twenty-five citizens of Sheffield will attend the memorial service of Frank W. Morray, late representative from the 37th district, to be held by the House of Representatives March 8. Mr. Morray's home was at Sheffield. He had represented the district for twelve years.

Legislators frequently pride themselves on their ability to quote the scripture, although the Bible is quite as frequently misquoted in the legislative halls. While pleading with downstate senators to support the Schnackenberg bill to increase the term of Chicago aldermen to four years, Senator Denvir, minority floor leader, shouted to his colleagues, "It's been said, 'Give to Peter what's Peter's' and to Paul what's Paul's. Let Cook county have what they want and we will let downstate have what they want."

A questionnaire which will assist directors of the Illinois Manufacturers Association to formulate rules for its guidance with regard to the proposed gasoline tax of two cents a gallon for Illinois has been sent to its members.

Among other things the Association would like to know how much such a tax would cost each member company, and whether they would be in favor of a two cent gasoline tax if the state and local license fees were abolished.

"It is estimated," said the circular, "that under the proposed tax, Illinois, with nearly 1,400,000 cars, would pay about $16,700,000. So far as we have been able to learn there is no proposal to take off the license taxes in exchange for the gasoline tax."

Opposition to the gas tax has come from another organization. The Illinois Motor Transportation Association is one of the latest arrivals to line up with those fighting the tax. Reasons for the action of the Association as given in a recent bulletin are:

"There is at present no necessity or a gasoline tax. Since the present automobile license fees are pledged for years in advance to carry out the land road system, it could not be in lieu of any other fee or tax and would only be an additional burden upon our industry."

DREAM OF JAMES J. HILL RECALLED IN RAIL MERGER

"Northerns" to Follow Path of Lewis and Clark, Pioneers

St. Paul.—(AP)—Ralls that cross and follow the trails over which Lewis and Clark fought their way through trackless wilderness into the Pacific northwest more than a century ago are comprehended in the proposed merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railways.

Through forests, along streams and over mountains never before traversed, Lewis and Clark pioneered in the early years of the nineteenth century to blaze a path which opened the great northwest.

More than half a century after them came James Jerome Hill, rising from a laborer's job to empire builder. Jim Hill unfolded the vast northwest, then an uninhabited waste with miles of untilled prairies blooming with life and commerce. He sent ribbons of steel across the plains and over the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific coast. Two of the railroads he fathered are the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, which will be joined in a giant system.

Advancing westward from St. Paul, Clark, and eastward from the coast, track layers, who often found themselves explorers too, met to drive the last spike in the completed Northern Pacific line at Gold Creek in Montana's Heligate Canyon in Sept. 8, 1883, and ten years later, on Jan. 6, 1893, to finish the Great Northern in Washington.

The Lewis and Clark trail, which followed the Missouri river into Montana, is crossed by the Northern Pacific at Mandan, N. D., and Clark's returning route is the railroad's path for a considerable distance. The Great Northern follows the Lewis and Clark trail through much of Montana and runs parallel, for a way, to the homeward course of Lewis.

Should the union of the Northerns be carried through the merger will control operated mileage exceeding 28,000, with a $1,500,000,000 valuation and an capital investment of $650,000,000—for although the consolidation does not plan to embrace the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy lines, more than 97 per cent of that road's stock is owned jointly by the two roads.

Northern Pacific mileage is 6,682 and that of the Great Northern 7,092, subsidiary lines bringing the total to 13,550. The combined lines have some 2,700 locomotives, 2,300 passenger cars, and 115,000 freight cars, and operate in Wisconsin, Minnesota, both Dakotas, Iowa, Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Washington and the Canadian province of Manitoba and British Columbia.

Secretary "Eyes" to Blind Jurist

Cincinnati.—(AP)—A woman secretary sits in court and describes to the sightless Judge Samuel W. Bell, presiding jurist of Cincinnati's five municipal courts, the actions and characteristics of prisoners.

A woman's intuitive and observant powers serve him as well, Judge Bell says, as a pair of eyes. He lost his sight years ago, celebrating a Republican victory with a cannon, but his memory is so keen that he has confounded lawyers in his court by describing settings over which they bickered or reciting passages of law.

He has been entrusted, too, with leadership of relief work among the blind in Cincinnati, and a home for blind workmen here was founded largely through his efforts and bears his name.

Who Manages the Standard Oil Company? (Indiana)

"A composite picture of the Board of Directors would show a striking preponderance of the type of man who has risen from the humblest position through sheer ability and has received what education he possesses from experience in the school of hard knocks rather than in academic circles."

The Literary Digest gives the above account of the men who manage the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

The Board of Directors of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is composed of ten members—

R. W. Stewart.....Chairman
E. G. Subert.....President
W. M. Burton.....Director
Beaumont Parks.....Vice Pres., Gen. Mgr. Mig.
Allan Jackson.....Vice Pres.
R. H. McElroy.....Vice Pres., Traffic Manager
E. J. Bullock.....Vice Pres., Dir. of Purchases
John D. Clark.....Director
Amos Ball.....General Manager Sales
R. E. Humphreys.....Asst. Gen. Mgr. Mig.

These men are elected by the stockholders of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and to them is entrusted the management of the Company's business. They give their entire time, energy and devotion to the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and to no other.

The ten men who have been chosen to direct the activities of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) have received their training largely within the organization.

They know their business "from the ground up." They have worked their way to positions of responsibility through conscientious, painstaking, industrious effort.

In no other way is promotion achieved in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). Opportunities are open to all. Men are rising from the ranks constantly, but their advancement always is due to personal achievement.

Success in this Company is attained only through hard work and marked ability. There are no easy jobs. Everybody works. In this shirt-sleeved organization, the higher a man's position, the greater must be his capacity for work.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has undertaken the important task of manufacturing and distributing to the thirty million people of the Middle West petroleum products of the highest quality at prices which always are reasonable and fair. This task demands hard work and the best brains that can be enlisted.

The Literary Digest, speaking of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), further says:—"It has been indeed a marvel of effective commercial organization."

The reason for its effectiveness lies in the earnestness of purpose binding its group of 29,573 employees into an efficient and united whole—an organization adequate to the high ideals of service held by the management of the

FINAL STANDING

The final standing of the Rock River high school conference basketball games during the past season is as follows:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Dixon	10	0	1.000
Sterling	7	3	.700
Rock Falls	5	4	.556
Mount Morris	4	4	.500
Morrison	3	5	.383
Rockdale	2	9	.250
Polo	0	10	.000
Mendota	0	10	.000

Mt. Morris high school teams wound up the conference schedule by defeating Rock Falls in both light and heavy contests, the Ogle county lights winning 19 to 14, and the first team defeating Rock Falls, 27 to 21.

Here's what "Heck," sports editor of the Sterling Gazette, says of the teams which will meet in the tournament at Sterling Thursday evening:

At 7 o'clock Rock Falls meets Oregon. Rock Falls has won 11 and lost 4 games this season. The team is coached by Ted Scheid and it is unique in that it has two captains, Harry Egan and Millard Johnson. Since a recent injury to Cecil Logan, guard, Coach Scheid had to re-vamp his team, but he has it working smoothly. The forwards are Johnson, Willett and Hunsberger, center, Egan and Walton; guards, Hankerson, Oltmann and Johnson. The school colors are green and black.

Oregon is coached by G. O. Melander. The information as to the captain and members of the team is not at hand, but during the present season the team has made a very good showing.

Practice Out Of Doors.

Ashton and Lee Center meet at 8 o'clock. H. M. Cavina is the Ashton coach and Kenneth Sanders the captain. This year the team has won 5 and lost 10 games. Nearly all of the games were played away from home and with large schools. Ashton has no gym and the team practices out of doors early in the season when possible. Last year the team made a fine showing in the local tournament. The team this year is composed of green players who will be playing their first tournament game. The forwards are Vaupel, Reitz, Pober and Venturi; Sanders, center, Hamel and Wallace, guards. Wallace is the son of Prof. J. B. Wallace, principal of the school and formerly of Rock Falls. The school color is dark green.

Lee Center is coached by R. P. Roberts, and Cecil Nattress is the captain. This year the team has won 5 and lost 9 games. The players are not experienced. Near and Lyman are the forwards; Bybee, center; Nattress and Preadhoff, guards. The colors are maroon and white.

Each Has Won Games.

At 9 o'clock the team of Morrison meet. Each team has won a game this season and this will be one of the battle battles of the tournament. L. E. Sharpe is coach of the Morrison team, and Otto Rastel is the captain. Last year the team won 14 and lost 10 games, and was winner of the district tournament here. This year the team has won 11 and lost 5. Half of the players are experienced. The forwards are Stanners and Kahler; center, Wilkins; guards, Rastel, Baker, M. Lazio, and Michael. The school colors are red and black.

Sterling is coached by Hugh Whaley and Elmer Hoek is captain of the team. This year Sterling played 14 games and lost 3. The forwards are Ridge, Mitchell, Wyatt, Eschelman, and Leininger; center, Rock and Pizz; guards, Hoek, Bowden, Stanley and Walters. The school colors are blue and gold.

Conservation of Natural Wealth of Midwest is Theme

Chicago—(AP)—The fight to preserve natural resources of the middle west is expected to be unified at a conference here May 9-14.

Governors of five mid-western states have been asked to attend and marshal a small army of conservationists.

Announcement of the gathering was made by Governor Fred B. Zimmerman of Wisconsin who has invited the chief executives of Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Michigan to attend. The proposition has been put on a business basis—that states which do not take steps to preserve their natural beauty will lose some of the tourist revenue. It is argued that tourists visit states to enjoy the outdoor life and the beauty of forests and streams. Tourist revenue is estimated to be $100,000,000 annually in Wisconsin.

In his call for the meeting, Governor Zimmerman said:

"It is my hope at the conference we may make some headway toward reforestation, the establishing of game preserves, the prevention of forest fires, and the beautifying of highways.

"With the governors of five states to lead the fight I think I think that we can take real steps in conservation. We can take up the problem of unifying game laws so that the game hog who jumps from state to state during the hunting season may be controlled. With the present laws a man may be restricted to one elk season in Wisconsin, but after he has got his elk in Wisconsin he will jump to Minnesota or Michigan and get another. One elk a season should be enough for the hunter. If he kills more than one we cannot preserve our elk much longer."

THE LIFE OF CHRIST

"Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him." (Matt. III: 13)

Bits of News From Leaguers in Their Camps

(BY THE AP)

Both Chicago entries in the major league pennant races completed their spring training today. The two club holdouts, Elwood English and Percy Lee Jones, arrived at Catalina Sunday.

The White Sox veterans reported in camp over the week end and Manager Schalk assembled enough players at Shreveport for a six inning practice game.

The "food" cure is to be administered to holdouts at the Yankee training camp at St. Petersburg. "If a player can sign his name on a dinner check, he can also sign a contract," Miller Huggins explained in announcing that lunch would not be served to holdouts.

At Clear Water camp of the Brooklyns, Dodgers, camp infielders and outfielders have arrived.

At the Giants camp at Sarasota, nearly the full quota has arrived in time for games with the St. Louis Browns.

Six players from the Fort Worth team of the Texas League are now playing for the Detroit Tigers at their training camp in San Antonio, including one catcher, four pitchers and an outfielder.

Hargrave, holdout catcher of the Cincinnati Reds, stated he did not see any hope of coming to an agreement. Word from the Orlando training camp was that efforts were being made to obtain another catcher.

Joe Shute, veteran pitcher of the Cleveland Indians at the Lakeland, Fla., training camp, predicted that while the team will miss Speaker, the Indians "will not finish worse than second."

The arrival of Ty Cobb at the Philadelphia Athletics training camp at Fort Myers today completed Manager Mack's roster. Stubby McInnis has outlined three days of workouts at Bradenton for the Phillies.

Twenty-two of Manager Howley's Browns were heading toward Sarasota today where they will meet the Giants in the first practice game of the season. Outfielders Douthett and Hefey arrived at the Avon Park, Fla., camp of the Cardinals yesterday from California.

When it rained at New Orleans, Manager Carman ordered the Red Sox out under the grand stand where they were put through limbering up exercises.

In St. Petersburg, Manager Dave Bancroft said the Braves were far superior to last year's team.

Another long batting practice was to feature the Pirates training schedule at Paso Robles, Calif., today.

Manager Harris has made his last slash with the pecking knife at the camp of the Senators. He has let go Jack Blair, first baseman, and Ben Shaw, catcher.

Governor Continues in Effort to Enforce Old Blue Laws

Columbia, S. C., Mar. 7—(AP)—Arrest of ten more golfers and an alleged seller of cigarettes has given the courts another opportunity to interpret South Carolina's century old Sunday closing laws, a row over which has developed as a result of an Aiken jurist's order enjoining their enjoyment.

Third attempt to enforce the Archaic laws since Governor Richards' order to see to it that they were observed, resulted in additional arrests yesterday. Three golfers already had been acquitted for playing on Sunday.

The ten players were arrested at Camden, while Fred S. Asmar, cafe proprietor was taken into custody charged with selling cigarettes and soft drinks.

Spring Driving Necessitates Care

Spring driving requires its special precautions as well as winter operation, but the motorist who has been forced to exercise restraint for the more severe months of the year may be inclined to ignore the need for further care. This point is raised by Clark Hess, manager of Lee County Branch Chicago Motor Club, who points out that under certain inevitable seasonal conditions, roads and streets in springtime can be just as treacherous as those of winter.

"The road that is dangerous in winter, because it is covered with ice or snow, may be just as much a menace to safety during the rainy spring months when a thin film of mud covers the highway," says Mr. Hess.

As compared with driving over a snowy or icy road, it seems mere child's play to operate a car over one that merely is wet with rain. However, during spring, the wet road usually is made hazardous by the thin film of mud that works over it when the ground begins to thaw and there seems to be no bottom to the world.

"The American Automobile Association, with which this club is affiliated, in its far-reaching surveys into accident causes has found that the hard-surfaced highway which is lightly coated with mud is a fertile factor in producing mishaps. It has shown that the well-advised driver makes the necessary concessions to safety under such circumstances by recognizing the potential danger of the highway."

"It is well to remember that the ever-dangerous front-wheel skid, as well as the sliding of the rear wheels, is possible on the road that lies beneath a thin film of mud."

Millikin Will Invite High Schools to Meet

Decatur, Ill., (AP)—All high schools of Illinois will be invited to enter contestants in the seventh annual Millikin relay carnival which will be held here Saturday, April 23, Athletic Director Leo Johnson announced today.

A Class B, 880-yard relay for smaller high schools has been added to the six relays which have been regular events of the program. Other relays are the mile, half mile, quarter mile, mile medley, two mile, and half mile for junior high schools. Besides the relays there are twelve special events for individual performers.

Last year more than 500 athletes, representing fifty-six schools took part in the carnival. Tilden High of Chicago set a new national record in the quarter mile relay, and five meet records were broken. The Millikin carnival records now stand with the best in the country.

Millikin has decided this year not to confine its activity to track alone at the annual carnival, but to have a literary program that will include contests in piano, voice, glee club, violin and dramatics. The music contest will be under the direction of the Conservatory of Music while the dramatic division will be conducted by the English department of the University.

Friday, April 23, will be devoted to the preliminary contests of the literary section of the carnival, with the finals on Saturday, the same day as the track meet.

BRAVES HOPEFUL OF BETTER POST IN COMING RACE

Players Enthusiastic in Their Training Work at St. Pete, Fla.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7—(AP)—The spirit is unquestionably in the camp of the Boston Braves. The work of preparation for the National League season is being attacked with an enthusiasm that may bear fruit when the campaign gets under way. With Manager Bancroft leading the way, the Boston boys have a possible edge on other clubs training in Florida.

Bancroft has some training ideas of his own. He ordered special practice for batting practice at the beginning of the training and contrary to the usual batting spree indulged in from the jump, the Braves spent their time bunting for the first week and the pitchers tossed on the side lines instead of the mound.

"The pitchers have reacted favorably to this program," Bancroft said.

Pitchers are Ready

Charley Robertson, formerly of the Chicago White Sox, declared himself never better. Hearn, furnishing with Mogridge, the left hand pitching staff of the club, now that Cooney is out, seems almost ready to pitch.

Smith, regarded as one of the mainstays, is taking it easier, but Knight, late of the Phillies, has struck a fast early stride.

J. F. Hogan, a young catcher who hits hard, is about to win a place as assistant to Taylor and Gibson.

Moore on Third Base

Eddie Moore, from Pittsburgh, will play third base. Manager Bancroft will again take care of short. Galtreau will probably be back at the bat at second base. Two first basemen will also be retained, both Dick Barrus of last year's team and Jacques Fournier, late of Boston, being slated.

Lance Richbourg has shown enough to justify his employers' judgment in paying Milwaukee a fancy price for his release. He will be a regular outfielder. Eddie Brown and Jim Welsh likely will fill the other two places.

Manager Bancroft is cheerful and believes his club has a good chance to get somewhere in the race.

Hoppe Has Chance to Join Leaders

Washington, Mar. 7—(AP)—Willie Hoppe, world's 182 balkline billiard champion, has a chance to go into a second place tie with Edouard Horamans, Belgian star, in the championship tournament being held here.

If Horamans wins he will take the lead with three victories and no defeats.

Welker Cochran and Jake Schaefer who are in a triple tie with the Belgian for first place, were not scheduled to play today.

Cochran who ran up an unfinished cluster of 229 in defeating Hagelbacher of Germany Saturday is claimed to have the edge on the others who threaten to upset Hoppe's crown.

Confessions of Washington Wives

Being Intimate Stories of the Woman's Side of Official Life in the Capital

BY ALLENE SUMNER
CHAPTER I

"I was lunching with Mrs. Coolidge the other day, and she said to me—"

When Mrs. Senator sits herself down for her mahogany spiced tea to write "the low-down" to the folks back home, it's a safe wager that before the massive ends the above line gets in.

The girls gave Mrs. Senator a shower before she left for Washington, and the very last thing they said as they gave her the silver coffee set was "Tell us all about Mrs. Coolidge when you write!"

Lunching With Mrs. Coolidge

So she does it. It's much easier for her than for a congressman's wife or even a cabinet secretary's wife, for the senator's wife does not do lunch with the president's wife almost every week when Congress is in session.

Of course, if the girls back home think that the senator's wife means literally that Mrs. Coolidge and herself breeze into a smart tea room for a chicken sandwich and a cup of chocolate, they are wrong. Mrs. Coolidge, when she discusses husbands and things, they're just too silly to think it, that's all.

What she really means is that she belongs to one of the very few clubs in the country of which the First Lady is a member. And the senator's wife never forgets it.

Meets in Senate Office Building

Every Tuesday, God willing and nothing interfering, the senator's wives lunch and gossip with the First Lady.

The Senate Ladies' Luncheon Club meets promptly at 1 p. m. each Tuesday in the Senate office building, just to the right of the capitol where the Senate husbands toil and delve for their country.

The Senate wives are supposed to be there before the appointed hour. For the law of the Washington Medes and Persians reads that under no circumstances must be in their places before the First Lady appears.

"Do Let's Be Sensible"

Mrs. Coolidge herself, tale has it, is no steeper for the court of the land. Dignified observance, whenever possible, is her code, but do let's be sensible!

One of the Senate wives tells of the First Lady's settling of two little fussy matters.

There was the matter of making reservations for the luncheon. Once upon a time it was necessary for the senator's wife to take her pen in hand and write a very formal regret

Decisive Game in Big Ten This Eve

Chicago, March 7—(AP)—The decisive game of the Western Conference basketball championship is the Iowa-Michigan contest at Ann Arbor tonight. A Michigan victory would bring the Wolverines the Big Ten title while defeat would give both Indiana and Purdue a chance to tie.

The Iowans lost a close battle to Ohio State Saturday night 30-28. Purdue tonight plays Northwestern at Evanston and Chicago at Lafayette next Saturday.

Indiana's last game is with Ohio at Columbus Wednesday.

The other game this week is Iowa-Wisconsin at Iowa City.

It is said some women in Washington official life carry a certain little official note-book with all these dates jotted down within.

There are a few insurgents who prefer Emily Post etiquette to official Washington etiquette.

"I was raised to permit older women to precede me and I just can't do differently even if the older woman does happen to be a congressman's wife."

"The Demon."

But the senator's wife confided that her mode of conduct was "bad business."

"The Demon" has phoned me about it," she said.

"The Demon," it seems, is a self-appointed arbiter who has been in official life long enough to know her onions and who spends her days surveying the lives of her fellow official women and looking for flaws in their conduct.

When she finds them, she phones—"Dear, you must be more careful. I saw you permit that Mrs. S. from Osceola to enter the elevator first last evening. You Senate ladies mustn't forget your duty to the dignity of the country. And they tell me, dear, that you're behind in your calls."

The Bargain Counter

"If they only knew their dates and stuck to 'em, we could keep the cars moving. But the cackles go about it."

And life is trying to a congressman's wife in Washington when she's on her way to a bargain counter, when there's but one pair of $1.49 hose left, and the senator's wife—"who doesn't need bargains half as much as I do"—gets to the table first—because the social law has it thusly.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"MAN" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ Scientist, Sunday, March 6.

The Golden Text was from Isaiah 43:21, "This people have I formed for myself; they shall shew forth my praise."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Then answered Jesus and said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do; for what things soever he doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise. For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things that himself doeth: and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye may marvel" (John 5:19, 20).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Immortal man was and is God's image or idea, even the infinite expression of infinite Mind, and immortal man is coexistent and co-eternal with that Mind. The spiritual man's consciousness and individuality are reflections of God" (p. 336).

OUR EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM IS CALLED SOCIALISTIC

President, Little U. of Wisconsin Outlines Its Faults

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 7.—(AP)—The country's educational system is socialistic because it gives too little attention to making studies fit the student; it must be made democratic. The Clarence C. Little, the 38-year-old president of the University of Michigan, crisply outlined what he considers the principal fault of present day educational methods.

Ten thousand students are governed by Dr. Little, one of the youngest university presidents in the United States, who brings to his task the vigor of an athlete and the energy of an Edison. It is not uncommon for him to spend eighteen hours a day at his work.

Democratic education! Frequently, Dr. Little has been swinging briskly down Ann Arbor streets, a market basket over his arm. He has been to the grocery store and butcher shop. He likes to bargain.

He sees his idea of "democratized education," as an herculean task requiring generations to develop. But he is not dismayed at the size of the job.

"I would rather push a big weight a short distance than throw a pebble out of sight," he said.

The ideal educational system in his mind would emphasize three points: Bring out the personal qualifications of the student as an asset to the state.

Interest all students in some phase of public service.

Bring about intelligent use of recreational time.

The socialistic tinge of present methods, he believes, consists of laying down set forms and rules for all the people, making them share alike in education.

"When blanket rules for all people are laid down, the people are being fooled," he said. "And another thing, the present-day boy and girl grow up thinking nothing more important than themselves. It is our duty to show them there are many more important things than the individual."

"Isn't the program somewhat idealistic?" Dr. Little was asked.

"In what way?"

"Well, you propose to fit studies to the individual, where would you begin the program?"

"At the bottom of the ladder."

"You mean in the primary grades?"

"Yes, and even in the kindergarten and in the home."

"Yet it still seems somewhat idealistic," the interviewer persisted. "You know the educational system takes care of a multitude of pupils."

"It does; and that is more reason why it should be more democratic as distinguished from socialistic. I believe that this democratic system is coming. I probably won't see it; it will require generations to develop, and I am but doing my bit in the direction I believe right."

Dr. Little is in his second year as president of the University of Michigan. He sleeps but six hours out of the 24, and finds his relaxation mainly in the evenings in the chemical laboratory. Two problems in laboratory work are now engaging his interest—cancer, and the effect of X-ray on the germ-plasm.

Aside from the laboratory, his one great diversion is dogs. The chemist-president of the university owns fifteen dogs, most of them Scotch terriers, a breed first imported to the United States by his father.

Asked if the program of six hours sleep a day proved sufficient, Dr. Little said that he periodically underwent physical examinations to determine whether his routine was too heavy. Thus far, he said, the tests have proved he did not suffer from the lack of sleep. "Moreover," he added, "the six hours are real sleep."

Dr. Little's day in his office begins at 8 a. m. and ends between 5 and 6 p. m., the noon luncheon hour frequently being combined with a faculty conference. When a university engagement does not occupy the evening, he works in the laboratory until about 12:30, takes a two-mile hike and retires at 1 a. m.

The university head, who was captain of his track team at college, is a firm believer in the value of athletics. He renewed his belief that a system of two varsity teams at each university would do much to eliminate any undesirable features of intercollegiate athletics. "With two varsity teams that could play basketball, football, and home games," he said, "the big week-end migrations in automobiles and special trains could be eliminated. These migrations are largely a waste of time, and the two-team plan would do away with them."

DeKalb Co. Farmer Becomes Member of Half-ton Calf Club

Urbana, Ill.—(AP)—Fred Witt, DeKalb county farmer living near Lealand, is the most recent winner of a membership in the Illinois Half Ton Calf club being sponsored by the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois in co-operation with interested farmers and county farm advisers for the purpose of emphasizing more economical beef production. It is announced by E. T. Robbins, livestock extension specialist of the college.

The purpose of the club is to demonstrate that good breeding, proper feeding and the right kind of management pave the way for the most rapid and economical gains on beef cattle. In order to win a membership a farmer must put a weight of at least 1000 pounds on a beef calf before it is a year old. Witt succeeded in feeding a registered Hereford bull calf Cyclone Lar 22d, for a weight of 1056 pounds by the time it was a year old.

"The feeding of this calf is rather unusual and shows that it is possible to get rapid growth with a thrifty calf on feeds which do not load the animal with fat. The calf was not fed corn or any purchased feeds," Robbins said.

"As soon as the calf would eat it was allowed oats and silage along with mixed timothy and alfalfa hay. The silage was not continued during the latter half of the time, but the calf had continuously all the oats it would eat twice a day with timothy and alfalfa hay. When the calf's dam began to dry up the calf was put on a nurse cow and continued in this way to the end of the year. The calf had practically no grass, but was kept in a dark stall when flies were bad. It had the freedom of a shed at other times."

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS HAD 59th BIRTHDAY School Opened Doors 59 Years Ago Wednesday Morn

Champaign-Urbana, Ill., March 3.—(AP)—Sixty years of progress in science of education was revealed to members of the 50th General Assembly here today as they concluded their biennial inspection tour of the University of Illinois.

Officials of the institution recalled that exactly fifty-nine years ago yesterday, on March 2, 1868, its doors were opened for the first time. And incidentally just fifty years ago the state legislature paid its initial visit to the school, then known as the Illinois Industrial University.

In striking contrast to its present enrollment of 13,764 students, its six-story seven major buildings and 2,401 acres of land, the University of three score years ago claimed but sixty-eight students and only one building. Today the legislators visited structures erected at a total cost of approximately $10,000,000, six colleges and three schools, whereas, in 1877, three committees from the General Assembly had only the colleges of agriculture, engineering, natural science and literature and science to inspect.

The stupendous transition kept pace in other vital respects. At a banquet in the women's gymnasium last night members of both the house and senate gave virtual assurance to President David Kinley, they would appropriate the usual $11,500,000 on which the university has been operating for two year periods.

STATE-WIDE WAR AGAINST APPLE PARASITE URGED

Campaign to Eradicate Codling Moth Plan of State College

Urbana, Ill.—(AP)—Alarmed by the act that the codling moth, one of the most destructive insects of apple trees, was worse last year than it has been for a dozen seasons, the Illinois state natural history survey and the horticultural department of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, urges orchardists this spring to adopt a definite set of recommendations in order to keep down further damage by the pest.

"Experiments to date indicate that arsenate of lead, the poison being used at the present time in spraying against the codling moth, is the most satisfactory of all the insecticides that have been tested," said W. P. Flint, chief entomologist. "Dust applied by hand is more effective than sprays, because experiments and observations to date show that they are not as effective against the codling moth under Illinois conditions as are the liquid sprays. To date experimental work with the summer oil sprays does not warrant any recommendations with regard to them for Illinois."

Application of the arsenate of lead spray should be made according to the regular spray schedule being recommended by the experiment station of the college of agriculture, according to Flint. Precautions should be taken to secure extra thoroughness in the application of all sprays, especially for the first brood of codling moths.

Under favorable weather conditions for the codling moth, such as prevailed in the fall of 1925 and spring and summer of 1926, and when the insect occurs in such abundance as during the last season, sprays alone are not usually enough to produce fruit free from worms, the recommendations point out. Additional control measures, such as the banding of trees and orchard sanitation must be used.

"Trees are banded to catch the codling moth worms coming to the trunks from infested fruit. Either tar or building paper should be used for the bands which should be the crown prince, now emperor, Count Yoshimori Futaba and Set-suzo Sawada brought prominently to the front of that portion of the volume devoted to the "human touch," the prince's golf practice on board ship.

In 1921, Hirohito went on a journey of six months "for to admire and for to see" that part of the wide world represented by England, Scotland, France, Belgium and Italy.

Explaining that His Highness was in the habit of practicing golf shots on deck a mishap was described when a ball struck a sailor acting as caddy. Hirohito dropped his club and ran to the sailor-caddy in great concern. He was relieved to find that the injury was not of moment, the shot evidently having been a pitch rather than a drive. The practice periods must have been fairly satisfactory for the imperial presence was later noted on several European courses.

The crown prince's resemblance to his grandfather, Emperor Mutsuhito both in person and character, was often remarked on his European visit, his companions reported.

Mr. Sawada was struck by Hirohito's regard for filial duty in his frequent dispatch of letters and presents to his imperial parents, his uniform punctuality, his knowledge of history and current events, his consideration for others and his common sense, with which he combined a keen humor and remarkable memory.

A retired captain of the British navy, after hearing the crown prince deliver an after dinner speech without the aid of notes, although speaking in French, remarked that he was a "great boy."

To this praise his own suite added that in sports he was a "good loser."
